

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR ROLE

Specialist Clinician

Answers the specialty questions a case raises, in your own field of practice.

Type: Independent contractor Location: Remote, United States Schedule: You choose which case offers to accept

About the role

Specialist Clinicians bring deep experience in one area of practice. When a case raises a question only a specialist can answer, such as what was expected at a given point in labor or how quickly a finding should have been acted on, you review the relevant pages and give a clear, record-based answer.

What you'll do

- Answer specific questions from the clinical team about expected practice, timing and clinical significance in your specialty
- Review the relevant record pages and explain what they show
- Identify factors that support, or point away from, a link between the care and the outcome
- Keep answers within the screening scope: what the records show and what an expert should examine
- Cite the record pages your answer relies on
- Respond by the deadline shown in the offer

What this role is not: Serving as an expert witness or giving testimony. If a case later needs an expert, that is a separate engagement.

This is not chart review

You analyze, not summarize. Every case follows The Lexcura Clinical Intelligence Model™, seven steps that show what the record proves, where it falls short, and what happened, when.

Every finding must be exact. Each fact must match the page it comes from. You open the cited page and check the time, value or wording before it's accepted.

The work is used in legal decisions. Attorneys and healthcare leaders rely on our reports to decide whether to take a case, how to defend one, or what to fix. Accuracy matters more than speed.

You stay neutral. We report what the records show, for and against. We don't advocate for either side.

No legal opinions or testimony. Your work supports a screening report. It is not expert testimony and never states that care was negligent.

Requirements for this role

- Active, unrestricted license
- A minimum of 5 years of experience in the specialty you'll review

- Specialties include obstetrics and labor and delivery, neonatal intensive care, emergency medicine, critical care, cardiology, behavioral health, long-term care and geriatrics, home health and hospice, and rehabilitation
- Physicians, advanced practice providers, CRNAs and specialty-certified RNs are welcome to apply

Required of every contractor

- Active, unrestricted license in good standing (verified before onboarding)
- Living and working in the United States
- A private, secure workspace and a computer with a current operating system and up-to-date security software
- Signed independent contractor, confidentiality and business associate agreements before your first case
- Completion of Lexcura onboarding and confidentiality training
- Disclosure of current and recent employers and facilities, so you're never assigned a case involving them

How case offers work

- Case offers are sent through the Lexcura scheduling app to every qualified contractor for the role and specialty.
- The first qualified contractor to accept is assigned the case. Offers that are taken close automatically.
- Once you accept, you must start work within 2 hours, on the same day.
- Each offer shows its completion deadline before you accept. Only accept work you can start and finish on time.

Working with us

You'll work as an independent contractor, not an employee, entirely inside the secure contractor portal on the Lexcura website. The Lexcura app is used only for case offers and scheduling. Records are never downloaded, printed, emailed or saved to personal devices. Pay is per completed task, and rates are shared during onboarding. There is no guaranteed number of cases.

How to apply: complete the application at lexcurasummit.com/join-our-team. We review every application personally and will contact you about license verification and onboarding if your experience matches a role we're filling.

Lexcura Summit provides Medical-Legal Analysis. It does not provide legal advice or expert testimony. Lexcura Summit is an equal opportunity organization and welcomes applications from all qualified clinicians.
